

Climate Law & Policy

This course, open to both law and graduate students, provides a broad overview of climate change law and policy, one of the fastest growing areas of law and one that has become relevant to virtually all areas of environmental regulation. The course offers a survey of efforts in the United States to address anthropogenic climate change. The course will also consider legal implications of adaptation to environmental disruptions, as well as efforts to assign legal responsibility for climate change-related harms.